With regards to the roles and responsibilities of the office of the Governor

Action: For adoption, ratification and memorialization within the public records, the Governor hereby moves the assembly for the Government of The United States of America, for the adoption of the following text, in compliance with the Articles of Confederation, as amended, to further define the functions and duties of the office of the Governor, in hopes of unifying roles and responsibilities of the office of the Governor with performance expectations from General Post Masters and American Nationals.

The responsibilities herein may be subject to future modification as deemed necessary and practical based upon experiences of the office of the Governor or the will of the assembly of the Government of The United States of America.

General Definition: The office of the Governor is directly responsible for ensuring that operations and functions of Government work efficiently to provide General Post Masters and American Nationals timely services.

The office of the Governor is the highest elected office in the Executive Branch. The Governor serves as the titular leader of the North American National Party. Additionally, the office of the Governor also fulfills other vital roles for the Government:

Administrator - As chief administrator, the Governor is responsible for the performance of all those who work for the Government or on behalf of the Government through a contractual arrangement.

The office is responsible for development and implementation of processing protocols for General Post Master candidates and possesses approval authority for General Post Master candidates. The office of the Governor may establish short or long-term advisory bodies and steering committees to enhance understanding of government, department or service functions. The Governor may nominate candidates for cabinet-department leadership positions with those nominations brought before the National assembly for confirmation.

Legislature – The Governor, as articulated in the Articles of Confederation, as amended, “shall be Governor for the United States, in Congress assembled” and as such, directly oversees the efforts of that legislative body. When necessary, the Governor possesses the authority to convene that legislative body and may adjourn such convening upon the Governor’s satisfaction that the issue has been resolved. In the event of equal voting within Congress, the office of the Governor is responsible for providing the resolution vote.

State Spokesperson - The Governor is responsible for periodically informing American Nationals on the status of programs and initiatives of the Government. The office of the Governor receives foreign business proposals for presentment to Congress and presents vendor contracts to the National assembly. The Governor also serves as the ceremonial leader for visiting foreign dignitaries.

So prepared and presented to the assembly for the Government of The United States of America on this 287th day in the year of Yahweh, 6018 (December 30, 2016)
